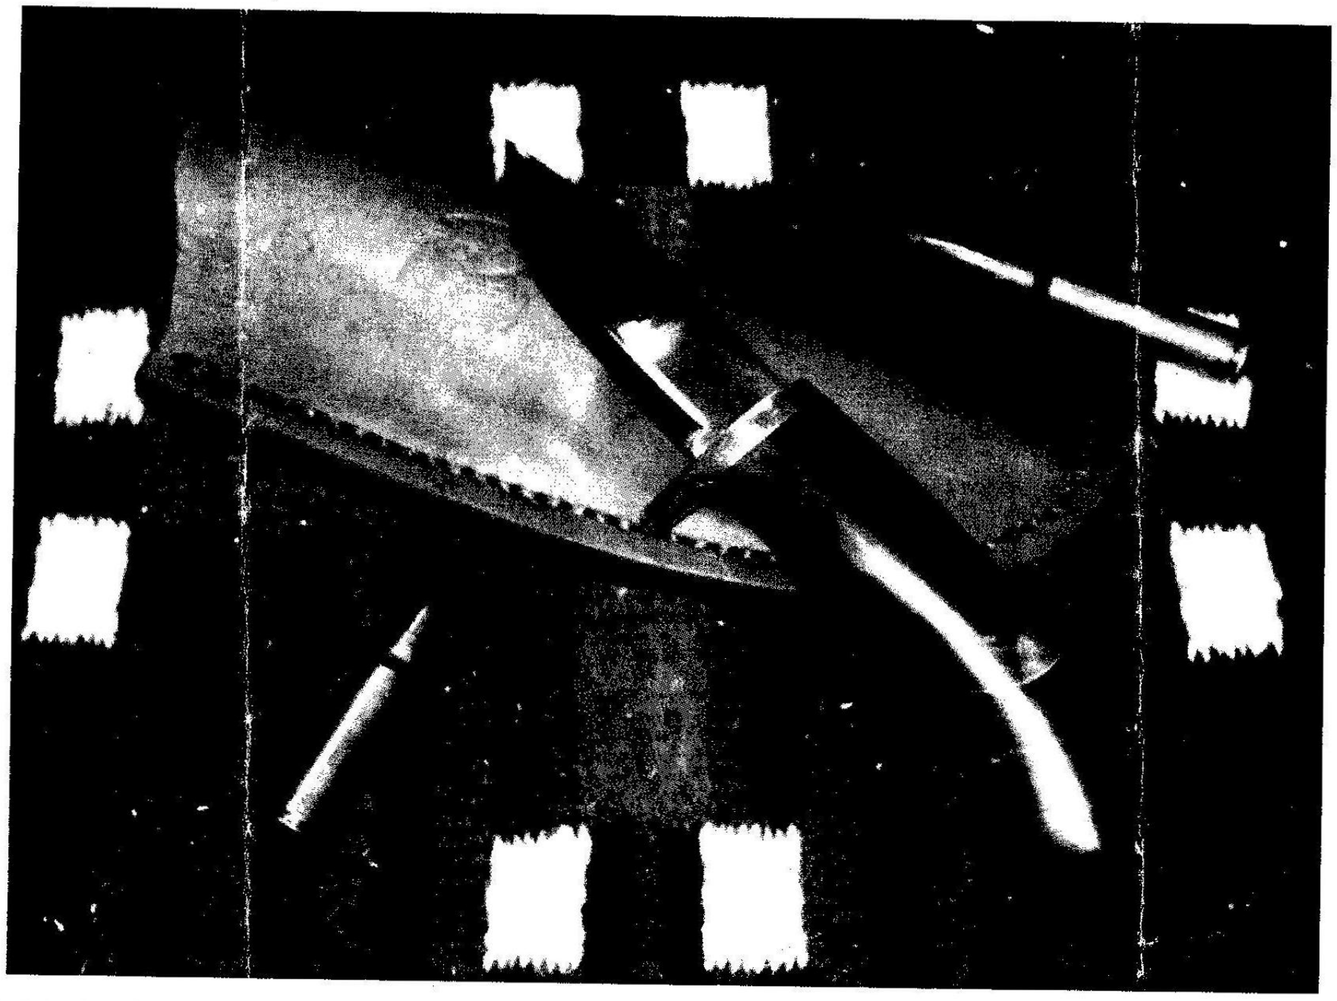
Raffle for Travis Falcon
Drawing - May 1, 2006



This Helle blade is made of triple laminate stainless steel. The center portion that holds the edge is of high carbon stainless steel. The edge is hardened to 58-59 HRC. The outside layers are tough 18/8 stainless. This makes a blade that can be sharpened to a very fine razor edge, and yet is not brittle. It is also easier to re-sharpen because much of the steel being removed is softer than it would be otherwise. It's Norwegian steel and fine stuff.

The handle is curly maple, stained brown and filled with acrylic. It is stable, should not warp, and is virtually waterproof. It is shaped, oil sanded, and polished by hand. The back base is linen micarta.

The sheath is water molded and hand sewn. It has an internal leather cam to hold the knife so there are no moving parts to wear out. The sheath is soaked in paraffin and neatsfoot oil to preserve it.
